The conditions of these loans are set by the government and are similar to the conditions of a home loan. The interest rate is fixed and the term is usually 15 or 30 years. The government also provides a guarantee for the loan, which means that the lender is protected in case the borrower defaults. This makes it easier for the borrower to get a loan, especially if they have a low credit score. However, the interest rate is usually higher than for a conventional home loan.
